Lecture 2: Loss Functions

Heading: Loss Functions
A loss function measures the discrepancy between model predictions and true ground-truth targets. For regression models, Mean Squared Error (MSE) computes the average of squared differences. For classification, cross-entropy loss quantifies divergence between predicted probabilities and target labels. Optimizing a model means minimizing this loss.